Washington, D. C.

Dear Miss Sweeney:

As you know, one of the great pleasures of going to Dumbarton has always been the intimate talk that you and I have had not only about Dumbarton and your work there but about all sorts of things in heaven and earth.

You know I miss those visits and while no conversation relayed through another person can ever be quite the same as a talk face to face such as we used to have I hope very much that if Mr. Patterson asks you to see him you will find time to talk to him frankly and speak to him as he will relay all your comments to me. I want to know how the whole atmosphere appears to you and also I would like to know whether you need any further funds for buying prints, whether you need any books, and more than ever if you need any encouragement. So to let me hear as directly as possible.

Yours always,

Beatrix Farrand
