HENRY E. HUNTINGTON LIBRARY AND ART GALLERY
1650 ORLANDO ROAD, SAN MARINO, CALIFORNIA.

Fondly loved Mildred,
We got back here a couple of days ago, rather wifty, both endwise, & are taking things at a stowish pace of what is called in "tushery" novels - the wince, whatever that may be -

There's such a damned up accumulation to spread out before you - first - as to how you & Robert are, & if the milder weather & fresh are healing some of the emotional scars -

Then, as to new Dunbarton

& its glorious permanence & prospects. One can't let oneself turn back too many pages of happy days of creation & development, but one must keep ones eyes frank & try to look through a telescope of revealing distant prospects.

The two, Sachs & Thacher were as kind & nice & understanding as could be, & we had good talks, not for to day or to-morrow, but looking toward the enduring future. Already they see new possibilities opening, & distant prospects of development
Do you suppose the donors, would like this or have suggestion - to which my invariably repeated answer was, that more than twenty years of work with you both had filled me with profound admiration for your farsightedness - that Dunbarton would never have been made what it is, & given as it has been, unless you had so cared for it that you wanted it to live usefully - They were quite touchy over their anxiety that all should go according to your liking - They said they would later write as to what they might find they wanted from me -

Mr. Waterman said he was flying to you as to the new house & was to stay some weeks with you in its creation.
& seemed greatly excited -

What a fine room the exhibition room is, a how exquisitely the collection is shown & with what perfect lighting - But one can't allow oneself even to start - as the paths are too enticing & exciting & our child has begun so fine & useful a life on her marriage!

Will you telephone me some morning or shall I call you up - before long I'll be heading to the B. & we can really talk - Dr. Cesa Gorinda yeh sold?
Joer more than ever long & admirer Trix
