

August 21, 1933.

Mr. J. H. McDaniels,
645 Main Street,
Geneva, New York.

Dear Sir:

To my consternation I have just found a note written you on July 12th, lost in the pages of a book. Please accept my sincere apologies for this deferred message of thanks. You have been most kind in going to so much trouble on our behalf and the Greek translation you were good enough to make pleases us greatly.

We are most appreciative of the interest and thought you have given to our problem and send hearty thanks and reiterated excuses for my unwitting tardiness.

Yours sincerely,