Dearest Mildred:

Some how I am troubled because there is no word from you of any kind. Has my silence hurt you, as this would be more than I could bear? A letter went to you on the 25th of June to meet you in Boston as your last letter to me said you would be there from last Monday until the 2nd of July. Do let me have a line from you if you can spare a moment. All is well here and one day succeeds the other and my exemplar is ever before me.

Yours devotedly,

Beatrix
